REMARKS

[redacted] 25X1

An air force building in WARSAW was repaired by German PWs between April and October 1947 (location see Annex). This building had previously belonged to the Polish Navy as was confirmed by an anchor still attached to it. Two aircraft were parked in front of the entrance to the eight-story building, which had been damaged in World War II. The building, though under repair, was occupied. A large radio station was housed in several rooms on the first floor; a high radio mast was atop the roof. Offices were on the second floor and courses for Polish Air Force officers were held by Soviet officers in rooms on the third and fourth floors. There were more Soviet than Polish officers seen in the building. On the same road, about 660 feet further north, there were officers billets, mostly for Soviet officers.

25X1 [redacted] Comment: For lack of comparable information it cannot be stated which Polish Air Force headquarters is housed in the building. According to the attached sketch, the building seems to be located on GROJECKA street, which leads from the town center to the southwest.
